My Dear Sir,

You must not suppose from my long delay in thanking you for your letter of the 19th that I was insensible to the kindness which dictated it, & to the warmth with which you extend into my success at Liverpool. I was detained at that place for ten days after my Election by feastings - & had afterwards to make a circuit by Manchester for a similar purpose, before I could get quietly quietly home — which I did not do till the end of last week.

Rt. Hon. J. McMahon

I stay here till the end of this week — & by the end of next week I mean to be established at Glamorton Lodge. Should you have any occasion to write to me, a line directed there would be duly forwarded to me on my journey. I should be very glad if you could tell me that it is true, as I hear he said, that poor Sheridan is to find a refuge at Gatton. The Lord Stafford, I hear, by his own (or his agents') mismanagement.

Ever, My Dear Sir, with sincere regard & esteem — Most faithfully Yours

Geo. Canning

As I have you received the Liverpool Papers with which I take the liberty of troubling you from time to time
