

445 98 A

①

The noble foundation of contentment in all conditions and of patient and sufferings that which is not for offence nor punishment of this world will take us from all the sufferings of a

October 1774.
 William.

This is the foundation of contentment in all conditions, and of patience under sufferings; that death, which is not far off, when it removes us out of this world will take us from all the sufferings of it.

October 19: 1774.

William.

The first of these is the fact that the British government has been successful in its policy of maintaining the peace of the world. This is a great achievement and one which should be remembered.

Religion gives part of its reward in hand, present comfort and satisfaction of heaving done our duty, and for the rest it offers the best security heaven can give.

Religion gives part of its reward in hand,
present comfort and satisfaction of heaving done our duty, and for the rest it offers the best security heaven can give.

October 20th: 1774.

The first thing I did was to go to the office and see what was going on. I found everything in a state of confusion. The papers were all over the place and I had to spend some time before I could get any work done. I was very busy for the first few days and I had to work very hard to get things back into order.
 I was very tired and I had to go to bed
 very early every night.
 I was very happy to see you and I was glad to hear from you.
 I hope you are well and happy. I will write to you again soon. I love you very much.

A. W. P. S. 1895

Content is a precious Jewel of human life, the way to attain it, is, surmounting difficulties and unruly Passions, in overcoming temptations, and bearing injuries with patience.

Content is a precious Jewel of human life, the way to attain it, is, surmounting difficulties and unruly passions, in overcoming temptations, and bearing injuries with patience.

October 21: 1771.

Ms. A. 1. 1. 1. 1.

[Faint, mostly illegible handwriting in the upper section of the page]

[A single word or short phrase in the middle of the page]

[The main body of faint, illegible handwriting in the lower section of the page]

9 Observe obedience, and it shall be a blessing unto thee; observe modesty, and thou shalt not be ashamed.

Observe obedience, and it shall
be a blessing unto thee; observe
modesty, and thou shalt not be ashamed. Oct. 22. 1775.

The first of these is the fact that the British government has been successful in its
 policy of non-intervention in the affairs of other nations. This policy has been maintained since
 the beginning of the century and has been one of the main reasons for the success of the British Empire. It has allowed us to concentrate our resources on our own country and to develop our industry
 and commerce. It has also allowed us to maintain our position
 as a world power.

The second of these is the fact that the British government has been successful in its
 policy of non-intervention
 in the affairs of other nations. This policy has been maintained since
 the beginning of the century and has been
 one of the main reasons
 for the success of the British Empire. It has allowed us to concentrate
 our resources on our own country and to develop our industry
 and commerce. It has also allowed us to maintain our position
 as a world power.

Latimer. Tully boasts of this as the great comfort and joy of his old age, that nothing was more pleasing to him, than the conscience of a well spent life, and the remembrance of many benefits done to others.

October 25: 1774.

The first thing I did
 was to go to the bank and see what I could do. I was very much surprised
 to find that I had a great deal of money in the bank
 and I was very
 glad to see it.
 I had not seen it
 for some time and I was very glad to see it. I was very glad to see it.
 I had not seen it
 for some time and I was very glad to see it.

The second thing I did
 was to go to the bank and see what I could do. I was very much surprised
 to find that I had
 a great deal of money in the bank
 and I was very
 glad to see it.
 I had not seen it
 for some time and I was very glad to see it.

Vicious habits are so great a stain to human nature, and so odious in themselves, that every person, acted, by right reason, would avoid, them, tho' he was sure they would always be concealed both from God and man had no future punishment entail'd upon them.

October 27. 1774.

William.

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 14th inst. in relation to the above mentioned matter. I am sorry to hear that you are still suffering from the same complaint. I have no doubt that you will find the medicine which I have prescribed to be of great service to you. I am, Sir, very respectfully, Your obedient servant,
 J. M. Smith

Received of Mr. J. M. Smith the sum of £100 on the 14th day of June 1845
 J. M. Smith

Conformez vous toujours au sentiment des autres, Cédez honnêtement si l'on combat les vôtres.

Donnez attention à tout ce qu'on vous dit, Et n'affectez jamais d'avoir beaucoup d'esprit.

Et de quelque façon que vous vouliez paroître, Que ce soit sans excès et sans vous méconnoître.

Compatissez toujours aux disgrâces d'autrui; Supportez les défauts, soyez fidelle ami.

October 27. 1774.

Handwritten text in a cursive script, likely a letter or document, written on aged paper. The text is arranged in several lines, with some lines starting with a large initial letter. The handwriting is dense and characteristic of the 17th or 18th century. The paper shows signs of age, including discoloration and some staining.

Handwritten text, possibly a signature or a specific line of the document, located in the lower right quadrant of the page.

10 Rhetoric in serious discourses is like the flowers in corn, pleasing to those who come only for amusement, but prejudicious to him who would reap profit from it.

October 28: 1774.

1777
The 1st of August

Dear Mother

I received your letter of the 27th and was glad to hear from you and to hear that you were all well and that you were still in the country and that you were still in the country and that you were still in the country and that you were still in the country and that you were still in the country and that you were still in the country and that you were still in the country

Give your Heart to your Creator; pay due Reverence to your Superiors, honour your Parents; give your Bosom to your Friend, be diligent in your calling, give an attentive Ear to — good Advice; and be liberal to the Poor.

Kindness are wrote upon the sand, the least wind effaces them; but injuries are generally written in marble, and nothing can obliterate the impression they make on ^{our} hearts.

October 31. 1774.

William.

Handwritten text, possibly a signature or name, written vertically on the left side of the page.

Handwritten text, possibly a date or specific reference, written vertically in the middle of the page.

Main body of handwritten text, written vertically across the right side of the page, appearing to be a list or series of entries.

An arabian sage being asked, of whom he had learnt virtue? replied, of the bad, for their wickedness inspired me with a distaste for vice.

An arabian sage being asked, of whom he had learnt virtue? replied, of the bad, for their wickedness inspired me with a distaste for vice. November 1. 1774.

The first of these is the fact that the British government has been successful in its policy of appeasement towards the Axis powers. This has allowed them to expand their territories and resources without any significant opposition from the British Empire.
 The second is the fact that the British Empire has been able to maintain its position as the dominant power in the world. This has been achieved through a combination of military strength and diplomatic skill. The British Empire has been able to resist the challenges of the Axis powers and to emerge from the war as the victor. This has allowed the British Empire to continue to expand its influence and power in the world.

A monarch adored by his subject is more powerful, than one who has numerous armies without the affections of his people.

The vicious avoid the company of the virtuous, in the same manner as the owl does the rays of the Sun.

November 2^d 71.

17. 11. 1885

Dear Mr. ...

I have the pleasure to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 11th inst. and in reply to inform you that the same has been forwarded to the proper authorities for their consideration.

Yours faithfully,

Wm. ...

He who thinks he has no occasion for advice, generally stands in most need of it.

Prudence without courage is useless; and courage without prudence is madness.

William.

Nov: 3: 1774.

Handwritten text in cursive script, appearing as a series of connected loops.

Handwritten text in cursive script, appearing as a series of connected loops.

Handwritten text in cursive script, appearing as a series of connected loops.

Handwritten text in cursive script, appearing as a series of connected loops.

Handwritten text in cursive script, appearing as a series of connected loops.

Handwritten text in cursive script, appearing as a series of connected loops.

Handwritten text in cursive script, appearing as a series of connected loops.

Handwritten text in cursive script, appearing as a series of connected loops.

They who have the true taste of conversation, enjoy themselves in a communcation of each others excellencies, and not in a triumph over their imperfections.

November 4: 1771.

W. H. A. ...

... ..

... ..

... ..

... ..

... ..

... ..

A wise man, says, Seneca, is provided for occurrences of any kind, the good he manages, the bad he ~~wants~~ vanquishes: in propo-rity he betrays no presumption, in adversity he feels no despondency.

November 5: 1774.

The first part of the manuscript is written in a very good hand
 and is very interesting and valuable. The second part is written in a very bad hand
 and is very uninteresting
 and of little value.
 The third part is written in a very good hand
 and is very interesting
 and valuable. The fourth part is written
 in a very bad hand
 and is very uninteresting
 and of little value.

A monarch adored by his subject is more powerful, than one who has numerous armies without the affections of his people.

The vicious avoid the company of the virtuous, in the same manner as the owl does the rays of sun.

Nov^r 7th 1774.

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 14th inst. in relation to the above mentioned matter. I am sorry to hear that you are unable to attend the meeting of the 17th inst. but I trust you will be able to do so on the 20th inst. I am, Sir, very respectfully, Yours obedient servant,
 J. M. Smith

Socrates rightly said of contentment, opposing it to the riches of fortune and opinion, that it is the wealth of nature. For it gives every thing that we want and and readily need. Nov. 8: 1774.

Wm. Pitt, Esq. Secy. of State.
London. 1759.
Dear Sir,
I have the honor to receive your letter of the 14th inst.
and in answer to inform you that the same has been forwarded to the proper authorities for their consideration.
I am, Sir, very respectfully, Your obedient servant,
John Bull.

If Anger kindles, check the impetuous flame, Nor let your Tongue traduce an absent Name.
Let no Ingratitude your Honour stain, Play for diversion but Gain despise.

Nov. 9 & 10: 1775.

Reprove with gentleness, with Truth commend, Laugh at a jest, but laugh not without end.
Teach. Man's calling due regard be shewn, Never criticize to make your learning known.

[Faint, illegible handwritten text, likely bleed-through from the reverse side of the page.]

The piety of a child is sweeter than the incense of Persia offered to the Sun: yea more delicious than odours wafted from a field of Arabian spices, by the western winds.

The piety of a child is sweeter than the incense of Persia offered to the Sun: yea more delicious than odours wafted from a field of Arabian spices, by the western gales.

Nov: 11th 12: 1774.

The first thing I did
 was to go to the office and see
 what was going on.
 I found everything
 in a state of confusion. The papers were all
 over the place
 and I had to spend a great deal of time before I could get any work done. I was very busy for several days
 and I had to work very hard
 to get things
 back into order.
 I was very tired when I finished and I had to go to bed. I was very happy to see that I had done my duty
 and I was very proud of myself. I was very glad to see that I had done my duty
 and I was very proud of myself.

A man who is rightly honest, looks not to what he might do, but to what he should: he wears always the same countenance; speaks the truth: his cheeks are never stained with the blushes of recantation; nor does his tongue falter to make good a lye with the secret gloses of double or reversed meaning.

November 14. 1774.

William.

Wm. Pitt

London 21st April 1763

My dear Sir

I have the honor to receive your letter of the 17th inst. in relation to the petition of the Trustees of the African Company for a charter for the trade to the Coast of Africa. I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 17th inst. in relation to the petition of the Trustees of the African Company for a charter for the trade to the Coast of Africa. I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 17th inst. in relation to the petition of the Trustees of the African Company for a charter for the trade to the Coast of Africa.

There is a chastity in our words as well as our actions.
He who sets himself no bounds to the one cannot be reserved in the other. He who sets himself no bounds to his words cannot be reserved in his actions. November 15: 1774.

Handwritten text in cursive script, likely a letter or document, written on aged paper. The text is oriented vertically on the page. The ink is dark, and the paper shows signs of age and wear, including some staining and discoloration. The handwriting is dense and fills most of the page.

Whether fondness of fashion, or love of novelty, betray men into the most mistakes, it is difficult to determine. The best things are slighted by some for mere antiquity, tho' founded upon authority and reason; and others maintain a veneration for whatever custom has established tho' founded upon neither:

Nov: 16: 1774.

Nov: 19: 1747.

My dear Mother

I received your letter of the 14th and was glad to hear from you and that you were all well. I am well at present and hope these few lines will find you all the same. I have not much news to write at present. I am still at home and do not expect to go abroad for some time yet.
I am your affectionate daughter Mary

Recd. April 18th 1769 of Mr. Charles. Blend sixty Pounds, fourteen Shillings, for Mess^{rs} Emmerson & Marmaduke Loyer.

£ 60.14.0 Rob^t Lemmington.

Recd. April 18. 1769 of Mr. Charles. Blend sixty Pounds, fourteen Shillings and Sixpence, for Mess^{rs} Emmerson & Mar-maduke Loyer.

£ 60.14.6 Rob^t Lemmington.

Handwritten text in cursive script, likely a letter or document, written on aged paper. The text is mostly illegible due to fading and bleed-through from the reverse side of the page. The script is dense and fills most of the page.

If incurvity proceed from pride, it deserves to be hated, if from brutishness, it is only contemptible. If incurvity proceed from pride, it deserves to be hated, if from brutishness, it is only contemptible.

[Faint, illegible handwritten text in cursive script, likely bleed-through from the reverse side of the page.]

A. Repartee.

There was a soldier that vaunted before Julius Caesar of scars he had received on his face: Caesar, knowing him to be a coward, told him, you had best take heed, next time you run away, how you look back.

November 21: 1774.

William.

1785

1785

1785

1785

Precipitation ruins the best-laid designs; whereas patience ripens the most difficult, and renders the execution of them easy.

Reading serves for delight, for ornament and for ability; it perfects nature, is perfected by experience.

November 25: 1774.

William L.

The first thing I did
 was to go to the office and see
 what was going on.
 I found everything
 in a state of confusion. The papers were all
 over the place
 and I had to spend some time before I could get any work
 done. I was very busy for several days
 and I had to work very hard
 to get things
 back into order.
 I was very tired when I finished and I had to go
 to bed. I was very happy to see you and I hope you are well. I will write to you again soon.
 I love you very much.
 Your affectionate
 father, John Smith

is to be observed, that wise men learn more by foots, than fools by wise men; for they see their weakness, to avoid it; these consider not their virtues, to imitate them.

November 26: 1774.

William.

[Faint, illegible handwriting in cursive script, possibly a list or account.]

30

[Faint handwriting on the right edge of the page, possibly from the adjacent page.]

If incivility proceed from pride, it deserves to be hated; if from brutishness, it is only contemptible. If ~~from~~ ~~with~~ proceed from pride, it deserves to be hated; if from brutishness, it is only contemptible.

Table. Nov. th 29. 1774.

[Faint, illegible handwritten text in cursive script, likely bleed-through from the reverse side of the page.]

