Dear Brother,

Ever since Sunday I have been very unwell with a low fever which I have not succeeded in removing: I am consequently unable to give in the particularity of the day the very much against my inclination.

I should only I am afraid spoil sport: accept however my sincere congratulations on the occasion and believe me when I assure you nobody can be more attached to you or wish you better than I do.

As I have something of consequence to say to you, do let me know your motions: perhaps you will dine here tomorrow in which case send a servant on and dinner shall be ready at your own time: in due and always

Believe me to be,

Dear Brother,

Your's sincerely,
P. J. [Signature]
