Dear Brother,

Enclosed you will receive a Letter sent to by the Duke of Northumberland to Jack Rodney on the subject of politics: he called on me with it Saturday last and I now therefore trouble you to know your sentiments in order to guide Jack's determination: I must observe that if you wish him to decline the Duke's offer it will be very inconvenient for fear Jack to remain out of Parliament.

I sincerely hope the Princess will take care of herself. I for I am afraid the weather is against Ladies in her way: I cannot otherwise account for Mr Jordan's illness: I am afraid she will miscarry: my best wishes and compliments always attend the Princess: but particularly on this occasion:

I hope everything at Brighton goes on to your wish and that the season may favour you and the party more than it has as yet: I suppose in a fortnight you will be coming up this way to celebrate your Birthday and on this I just this previous to their visit to Margate.

I shall certainly go down to Brighton when my birthday is kept there: in the mean time advise and we believe me,

Dear Brother,

Yours sincerely,

J. P. Mack
