

Princess Elizabeth to Sir Henry Stalford

William IV.

44985-6

Lot. 203

The page says the King had six pennies stuck, whether that is true God knows, at least he was quiet & silent, during that time. He rather worried himself when he first got up with counting for what the God pencil wrote under this seal of secrecy I owe to you.
My mother tells me was given to him by the object of the Duke sworn, but may not know it & that not being forced, occasion some hurry, which he must have been aware of for he waked Bott if he was was hurried, & sat down to write himself before Duke & I was come in, they found man extremely quiet & composed & his eyes steady. Genl. A. brought with a copy of the account to the Council which my brother says is very plain & honest - so as far we go on side - I own I am very glad to hear Young Bott was to be put upon oath last night - Genl Gwyn who I saw this morning said the walk had been pretty good certainly a good many places, but nothing wrong of any kind, the snow stuck within a degree of freeze on his march, tho not in walking & that of him some took the wrong way Bott owned he had been sadly unwell at home yesterday & wrote rather words with the paper, but even so now
