

Admiralty.
 June 18: 1827.

Dear Sir,

Lord Cornwall has the Pleasure
 - to give up and has beyond a doubt a claim on the country as His Lordship is the only Heir to the property that has not been restored since forfeited in 1745. And to which His Lordship's Great Grandfather the Earl of Balmorine was most unjustly he made owing to a private animosity from another Peer.
 By the death ~~the~~ ^{the} marriage of the Duke of Gordon the situation of the Chief of the Great Seal in Scotland is now vacant and is the line with more than the Bedchamber. Under this impres-sion I venture most strongly to recommend the Earl of Cornwall to fill this present vacancy and ever remain,

Dear Sir,

Yours most truly

W. Marshall
