Oct<sup>r</sup> the 11

My dear Mr. Paine I have to returne You many thanks for a most kind letter received yesterday from my god You are to answer me as conveniently - I am most thankful to hear it is my power to answer you London certainly is not the most for the dreadful pulmonary and afflicting and that I told you in my yesterday letter had taken place the weight of concerns the top of your John Burrard - the paper yesterday my neck as usual the pain on the side just the same some degree of pain came on last night, but not more than she has there had since we have been at Weymouth - I persuaded her to keep on her bed some all day that she might not look out the sea on the dreadful stormy state it was in at sea & as they expected the Party of the poor young man to be washed, on these circumstances People were placed in different places to be ready to receive it therefore it made it very necessary to keep on the back part of the House which was just as quiet as we had been a hundred times off from my storm should have both Sir & Lady had yesterday by my advice to have it over as soon as possible - & as she was much relieved by tears I rejoice she was there as immediately - many circumstances belonging to this unfortunate event makes it very painful to me I wish for we did not belong any more to the Gasket & was going on board the Pellican Street ship I wish I had intended sailing the year they were in the cutter but your lady Burrows wrote to Sir & had to say for God sake he would not need have in so small a vessel for fear of accident which was delayed this from being young & to complete every thing the volunteered young man the boat to fetch the Barge on the then little boat who was to have gone with the Woodley was sea sick & in consequence James John offered to go for leave sir & deals our distress, his tendency for fear the there should be the minds for only just (John loved this boy just as much as he did) & his memory of having strayed to write to the General father & brother his fear that Anselm should be told it before yesterday morning on the defendant's situation I saw sir & deal suffering under

& in all, the pure & bright & manly character manifested itself in the strongest manner.
 The yacht was brought safe into Harbour.
 This morning she had passed 8.15 & I never saw it look more beautiful in my life than when it came in. He passed a day of great anxiety yesterday as it was in a most alarming situation, at times but thank God she was weathered it safely & is now safe and our joy & nothing for it had quite care & happy not to add Prud that the yacht stuck under a storm - no doubt my as well as Mr Brown that they never remember such a storm before in the Bay it is very hot still, but all the other Shipping they appear to be quite safe - Amelia has had a great deal of good sleep & Bessie is satisfied with the Pulse this morning she has rather more energy owing to the cold wind which is very sharp to day - Edward came to breakfast yesterday & made us much happy by the good accounts he brings from America -

Your dutiful & affectionate
