London, the 21st October 1804

My Dear Mrs. Mary,

I was much pleased to learn from your kind letter of yesterday that your health had improved in an increased degree from pain in the side & that the Reed had been disturbed by the recurrence of fever. I trust in God that I may have the comfort of receiving tomorrow accounts less painful than have been those of the last three or four days.

Believe me ever

(Signed)
G. W. R.
