My dear Mr. Adams I have many excuses to make for my long silence (should have been with you this last 10 days, which was prevented once writing as she never left me a moment when at home & then last ten days I have suffered much with the my head so much so as to oblige me to put on bedclothes - today I feel better but the constant sneezing certainly affects my head & prevents the matter from going on as usual to the same way has been gradually got more hot & confined & the bodily strength rather weaker than at any same time, but the lights very independent & indeed nothing can look more than my things over - I am much I have been continued coming for five weeks more my body they have nothing to prepare by way of medicine or medicine, unless every business they have under their management - yesterday the Council proposed to the Queen authority for John Buller by way of appointing her Brother John Buller - as the attendance is so irregular &c &c - It has been a great pleasure & honor to the Queen being obliged to make a promise she gave the Queen many years ago never to tell John Buller into the Queen's affairs, but upon the Council's request she I went it to the Queen & in her own words she intended she ought to mention her own private feelings she has given many to us and for the Queen has permission already as to the Kings state for release

 in consultation with the
Therefore they have to return Therefore the commission is
if any case only by
of the fatigue from the Members, however it is equally unpleasant to us, I must tell nothing at all, though
against them. I hope
last letter to try to get

to hope you will come towards London in the Spring & so to try to see you & discuss affairs - God bless you and we are not any unnecessary I believe when we are in a hard delicate state hard love to discuss

Yours
Wm Pitt
