My dear Mr Adams Reading thanks for your kind letter by which I grow to find Mr Adams entirely independent I wish from my heart
he was nearer to Henry & Brattle's
apartment, but hope
by letter they may do some good —
The few M. continues
just in the same
deplorable state the mind more than ever full of errors & the instance of the disorder stronger than ever before, but his strength still keeps

1811

notwithstanding that out of the 4 books he gets but 4 lines of & all the rest of the time is under a state of excitement
 sometimes he eats
 well as others
 refuses every thing Sophia has been very ill for two days with a fever but is better again today
 the accounts of Augustus are certainly better they had to all at Bourdeaux & believe me
 G. M. W. M.

I am so sorry to hear your George has been so uncomfortable about his children. I suppose you know they have none more about
 I don't see how you & it is thought to be lost or taken
 the matter to get together to ascertain the name of them
