My dear Mr Adams I am sure you will be glad to hear the Duke Augustus & myself are returned from Rome for some the fatigue of sitting ever close up to the Duke's attention & business and the hurry & disproportion of farther Rome for beyond my terms of discomfort was delighted to see Sullivan & his wife both looking well Mr Adams must particularly well liked & I was so fortunate to speak a word to both of them & rejoiced to hear the accounts of your health is better & all connected. You are coming up to Rome, but hope & trust you will come to me as next year. You will perhaps be surprised to hear I saw a lady who I am not much acquainted with but that named you & I think you were now here in your life & I don't likely never heard of her, but Lord B. had Seymour told me Lord B. intended to try stand for I think and was hardly strongly supported by Government & looked for the Adams's interest at first I was very much surprised & did not know what to answer but I think I got off well by saying I am sure if he is a man supported for the King, his Adams's interest will never be against him in any case & doubtless of course this is quite for General's evidence your Adams & Willson for I think it will be some time long. And then she intended into her much you was pleased & surprised & all your family & c. d.

I never & I never intended into any other policy, towards you all It shows what Parliamentary intended & does - We fought our blind King, in a way in the state in our interest & he has been in this manner state for ever a fortnight, but not in the tendency that the general matter keeps you & he sleep & eat well, but all agree in thinking the complaint takes the more fixed tenor. He does not suffer & is not unhappy - I believe I am & may to any man
