

July 27 1821

July 27 9A

~~I have not had a chance - I must thank you for your very kind and kind letter which I read at once and with great joy the paper was too much for me - the time was passing so fast - I am a gladder day indeed & it is quite impossible to tell you all the names of the people in my land in that day - I was gratified and glad I can tell you of the hearts of loyalty & duty & of the people etc etc the things you see by my mind through all the plague~~ undoubtedly & of course all joy at the whole leaving you off as well I sincerely hope dear George will be happy & that he may enjoy his domestic comforts & happiness than he has done before & that you will find him a great & comfortable addition in the family - I think that dear Anne has herself to be sure her mother was not as well to be out of company & it has disappointed my hopes The formation removes her from letters in regard to what is meant by land & the Duke does not feel inclined to make the first advance & of course her own own efforts

the
 from
 not
 not
 the
 the
 see
 of
 the
 the
 who
 how
 who
 to
 to
 not
 of

July 27 1821

the Army to do so, but one word from the Duke I know would at all night on the Army's side. The Duke did not see the necessity of appearing at the Drawing room in those said circumstances he had had of late sought to Establishe shall or shall we go to Government tonight
 certainly we were
 at Regent's Park
 and as I could not be at the Drawing Room I felt very thankfull to be out of the whole as it is every morning some full subjects to my hand which in my opinion I had to fight - Amputate etc off to remove & other will be a not less to me - Adolphus your mother's Wednesday afternoon

...of ... you ... with ...
... of ... was ... all ...
... is ... a ... reply ...
... will ... with ...
... the ...

[Faint handwritten text, possibly an address or recipient name, written vertically in the center of the letter.]

[Faint handwritten text, likely the main body of the letter, written in cursive script.]