

I am very sorry to find how full of still business as we could & am glad you are going to receive it & must be made a complete of the I sincerely hope that you shall not lose her (but) other all necessity about there is our mind - I feel for Augustus Baynes very much what her eyes & labor with can she will not the letter of this complaint it is a dreadful misfortune to be forced to use these eyes You will know the Duke of Devonshire again at Plymouth and the Battalion of before but the other it is painful to feel that it is necessary to have eyes to be can

 I
 to
 with
 I
 my he
 my
 I
 -
 the
 I
 my
 I
 is off
 my

July 3, 1822

to read a Resolution out of some of course it is a very subject with the Duke & one that is most desirable to me as it brings a great interest between the Duke & Indians there are circumstances which because he feels in his intention he would be what he thinks right & of course he feels this info is good & therefore acts in principle don't say I have named the subject to you very - but I was told it is these officers that are to be looking at but if you would then you but where Parliament is up you to the set of blanks to look what consequence I think is likely to be in my unfolding opportunity at St James by last month - It is the House in about the

I dropped & came down stairs part of the way with me when I left her. She was very kind friend to me & I own I feel her love deeply. All that she had from Gully you to her husband I will return. She has left her books to

July 3 1822

M 92

Mr. Adams

Boston

Mass

Dear Sir

Yours

Samuel

which will make her much more comfortable than she is here at the Poor Dept. You see death was within her at last. I thought she told me the day before she died / on which day I got some news with her / then she felt her end fast approaching when I called her at last was a voluntary Pract. employment in which she brought a new quantity of blood - she was up