

My dear Madam

Windsor 11th October.

I should feel reluctant to trespass again on your time were I not convinc'd that your goodness would excuse it in a Subject which chance has made so interesting to myself & my Daughter. — not having been honor'd with ^{a message} from the Princess Mary since she wrote to Bowden to make enquiries respecting us, I am at a loss to account for it. — being well aware from the high respect & regard ^{in which} you are held at Court that a line from you would be sufficiently satisfactory to M. B. M. for renewing her notice. — allow me to solicit your opinion on a small ornamental table which my Daughter has just completed with the intention of its being plac'd at Traymore through the kind assistance of some friend who would intimate such a wish to either of the Princesses — we are convinc'd that it would derive its value, & secure its approbation from your obliging interference — in describing it, I must add that my Daughter's Master has pronounced it to be extremely well executed: — in the centre is the cypher C. R. composed of of small flowers - surmounted by the Royal Crow encircled with a square wreath of flowers copied from nature - I took it to London last week to have it mounted - & from whence I shall fetch it tomorrow - the table will be supported by a large branch of laurel in dead & burnished gold, which will rest on a porphyry marble plynth - permit me again to apologise for intruding this subject on you - but as we shall leave Windsor in the course of a week - or ten days - it would be gratifying to present it before our departure: In hopes of being shortly favoured with a letter from you - and of having a good account of your health & that of Mr Adams I am your very sincere & obliged servant
