Mon. [Nov. 26] 1810

My dear Mrs Adams -
 My heart was so full when you was with me yesterday that I had no power to speak or say one word to express all I felt at parting from you Dear Dear how I forgot all your kindness & aff^{er} & much as I can love you the last of another such joyful life & another by aff^{er} was if possible ~~stronger~~ stronger that love which grows with time. I trust in God your health will not suffer

From all the anxiety and trouble we have caused you in our business that you have got us cold in going to London & found Mr Adams at least for work if his letter and doing all the night to try to get well so soon as possible — As to our blow thing I can not say entirely happy that I feel satisfied or comfortable about him again a night without sleep. He is not gone but at a stand still says nothing quite more but nothing quite right & talks a great deal more than he might in them the they was like - without my dear Adams every thing makes us poor it will be a long long business though the they was you before all will be well in time and that word time you will bring us &

 the country into real difficulties All this of course for yourself alone but I have been so used now to open my heart to you that I cannot in doing so I in being

Today but you know he can not believe me how - Butler likewise when came to me and wanted to talk comfort
 heart spoke a very different language - & got all of penance the & will never in time - As to myself I call myself well I'm being does not well not at all since with the disease & is inclined to shut me up but I shall go to the I for a short time this evening Butler is of penance I took my old Gully under ten aff. love - I hope you found William his wife & all his lovely boys will keep them all fresh and in particular William & tell him as well as his Brothers I long to see them again write to me soon tell me all your plans & all your business in & what is likely to be done thereby in the future

 Yours truly
