My Dearest Mother

In every moment I have been over down rising I sit down to write to you to tell you that they are safe at Westford Bridge and rising says that Anna Caroline is not so much fatigued as she expected but was very faint the last half hour and obliged to be carried out of the Carriage; she was much relieved by shading towers and rising really writes in spirits about her - You may depend upon having from me daily and that I shall tell you but the truth - I cannot tell you how much I felt your kind visit and only regret I was not more equal at the moment to rejoice it - And bless you; I wish to have in time in reading this therefore will only add that I am ever your affectionate
