

Feb. 7 1792

Dear Sir

Though I have no News to give you nor nothing interesting to relate yet I cannot resist the Pleasure of writing you a few Lines in order to recall myself to your Recollection. by Baron Hantons Letters who writes to you often you will know that I am settled at Portici. The quietness of the Place as well as Goodness of the Air greatly agrees with my Health. In the course of this Week I have wrote to His Majesty relative to Marseilles and have mentioned you being able to give him every necessary Information on that Head.
It was with much Concern I heard of Mr

Lady's Death. It must be a great Loss for Her poor Husband. The young family are best thriving
 It is with great Anxiety I wait His Majesty's Reposition relative to me. However something must soon be settled. for fear of tiring you Dear Sir as I have nothing to relate I shall conclude with desiring my best Compliments to your Son and signing myself

Your ever obliged

Robert Feby the 7th 1792

Augustus Frederick

oor
wing
is ing
Dear
the your ah
ah
y

[Faint, mostly illegible handwriting on a folded piece of paper, possibly a letter or document, with a circular embossed seal in the center.]

