My dear lady Charlotte Finch. I have this instant seen Hawthins who came to give me an account of the letter she had wrote to Mrs Clevely wherein He advises to give poor little Alfred all sorts of exercise preferable to that of being carried in Arms. It occurred to me that besides that of being drawn in a little Chaise the going on Horse back would be a very efficacious to him, The Postillion You have at Deal Castle who formerly drove us I know to be a very careful Man & if he thinks to be in possession of a quiet Horse I wish it might be tryed, Hawthins is of opinion that twice a Day if the Child could bear it would not be to much, and as of course the Chaise must follow, there will be no risque of his catching Cold by Wet as he by that means will be taken in immediately.
I am extremely sorry to find that this dear little Child must still continue suffering, and hope that this four footed Dr will prove of great benefit to him.

You seem desirous to know something of Willions accident, by the Surgeons account from New York there is reason to hope of his recovering some use of his Arm, may perhaps entirely as his Youth is much in his favour, The Arm was not broke, but the Shoulder agreed dislocated and its happening on board a Frigate where the Surgeon was not over Skillfull He very ignorantly call'd it a Bruise and treated it as such, a Month after when He returned to New York the Surgeons there discovered The Shoulder being put out & the great Bone broke, which having begun to Callus already enabled them to ^{set} it He suffered much pain when the operation was performed, and will be confined for some Month to come, as the smallest motion of the Arm will slip it out again. The Climbing up Masts is at an end now: but every thing else belonging to the profession He will still be able to pursue.

I ^{see} lady Louise Clayton in perfect health both at Harleford and upon the Terrace, their place is now in the greatest beauty We went all round it the other day and admired it very much. I am very glad to find that You expect lady Juliana Penn as an addition to Your Society, pray tell Her how sincerely I rejoice in her recovery.

Adieu my dear lady Charlotte pray let me know how riding ould agree with little Alfred & believe me Sincerely Your affectionate Queen
