D.N.B.)

Je vous envoie la lettre de médecine, et d'amelie meme, que j'ai trouve beaucoup mein, que je n'avois espere, heire, elle parait bien, et na point de toux, son oppression ne me para beaucoup, elle me mander, come vous voie quelle avais une peu de pain en avaller, elle je crois sera disposse la semaine prochain a faire ce que votre amie souhaite, et par consequence moy ausy, son opinion et une orraquel pour moy, le prince le presse tout autant que lay, puis qui le conseille, je suis ravie ma chere amie que votre amie et ausy bien que moy, une incredible, sur les l'appain,
Caroline

Je suis encore enrume, mais je crois, que j'ai pris, a Kersinthon, mais ce n'est rien, j'ai promis a emelie, d'aller dans le gallery, j'espere que je n'ait pas mal fait,

I send you the physicians letter & Amely's own, whom I found better than I expected yesterday. She looks better & has no cough. her oppression does not seem to me to be great, she informs me as you will see, that she has a little gain in swallowing. I believe she will be dispos'd next week to do what your friend desires, & I too because He does. his opinion is an oracle to me. the Prince presses it as much since He advised it. I am transported my dear friend
your friend is as much an un⁺believer as to the rabbits as I am
Caroline.

I have a cold, I believe I took it at Housington, but that's nothing.
I promis'd Amely to goe into the gallery I hope I hant done wrong.

+ an idle woman one Mary Toft pretended to be brought to bed of rabbits, & impos'd upon many people. Particularly
