Dear Sir P

I never was desired to write a Letter, that could give me so much pleasure as this, under the firm conviction it will succeed, nay I put my wishes yet further than a Christian's ought - for I would remove two very Old Gentlemen a great Way off - It really is my greatest pride that makes me sin - I hope the foundation is good whatever the superstructure is - enclosed is Lady Kankbury letter, very fair and discreet - Your character is to be taken, so rather your abilities inquired after from Lord Casuden - we shall hear what he says of you - I thought you went away in a high style yesterday, and did not expect to return to have had the power to say your angry comments I expect to have a thousand truths and perplexities and that what is promised will not be fulfilled - but I hope you will be in the wrong, as in truth you generally are - pray set me right, about the Paper badge and the Patent made out for them my best love to Lady Fanny Mary Sophia Miss Wagon - and pray take care not to lose the inclosed, adieu most angry Knight

Your sincere Friend

L. Chamberlayne

The Duke of Cambridge takes this opportunity of begging old Billy to send him the Notturne of Begeole which was published if he is not mistaken last year. He is desirous of his not having been sick on Friday last when he most brutally went on board
