Lord Mulgrave has the Honour to transmit to your Majesty the Draft of a reply to the official note of the Neapolitan Envoy; together with the proposed Answer to the confidential Communication of the Letter of His Sicilian Majesty to Prince Castelficala; which

Lord Mulgrave has the Honour to transmit to your Majesty the Draft of an Answer to several Notes presented in the Months of November, December, and January last, by the Neapolitan Envoy to which that Minister has very urgently required a written Reply without further Delay. Lord Mulgrave hopes the Answer which he has prepared under those circumstances may receive the Sanction of your Majesty's Approbation.

Sir 11595 - 6

It is very great presumption in me venturing to address Your Majesty but that unexampled kindness which has ever manifested itself towards me gives me courage, and I have only to hope that should I be doing wrong, the same indulgent & feeling heart which dictated such a letter, as the one received by Papa, will be inclined to pardon me, in consideration of the strong desire I have to express the unfeigned gratitude, with which myself, and all belonging to me, are penetrated by Your Majesty's unbounded goodness —

I beg leave to communicate that in consequence of Your Majesty's most perfect letter, Pope came to the resolution of sending the following message to Charles " That although " seeing him in the present state " of things, was impossible, as it might to express "create a Relief that the measure with which "received his sanction, yet he hoped to me, and "the time would come, at which he ty's unbounded "might again shake him by the Hand, "and that in the Interim, upon the that in "express condition that Miss Mordaunt ty's most "would abandon the connections & society to the "to which she had all her life been following "accustomed, he would consent to t altho' his "her leaving intercourse with myself at state "and my Sisters." — as it might your Majesty will, I flatter myself be of opinion that Papa has acted with the greatest kindness, and has done more than could have been expected in so short a time.

And for this I have the happiness of being indebted to the best of Kings, The Father of his People
The Comforter of the distressed.
May The Almighty for ever bless and protect Your Majesty, and may I be permitted to add, that to the latest moment of my existence

11597

My heart will ever be filled with the truest sentiments of love and admiration for your Majesty's perfections, and endless gratitude for your never ceasing kindness.

I leave the Honour to remain

Result of it.

The Lord Chancellor yesterday received a Note from Mr Pitt, intimating his wish that Mr Plomer, one of your Majesty's Counsel, should be proposed to your Majesty, as a Person proper to succeed to the vacant Welsh Judgeship. The Chancellor considers it to be his Duty, whenever any Name is mentioned with respect to the Office of a Judge, to state his Sentiments honestly, distinctly, & plainly: and, in the discharge of that Duty, he is bound to say that Mr Plomer is above all Objection, & that the Appointment would be highly useful & creditable, if he would accept the Office, as to what point the Chancellor has not yet any Information —

The Lord Chancellor, with every Sentiment of humble Duty, expresses the extreme Reluctance, with which he is compelled to trouble your Majesty again with a Commission to pass Bills, in order that the same may receive your Majesty's Royal Signature, so immediately after the last Time your Majesty was troubled upon a like Subject, but the Necessity arises from the Nature of the Bills, which are Money Bills for Ireland, and which admit of no delay, for, though they were sent up to the House of Lords last yesterday, they are to receive Bills, which expire on Monday.

The Lord Chancellor has communicated your Majesty's gracious Pleasure to Mr Pomer. The Chancellor is bound to express some Regret that he should have entertained a doubt whether Mr Pomer, considering the great Business in which he is engaged, would accept the Office; but he received the Communication with all the Expressions of Gratitude & Duty, which the Chancellor must say the whole Tenor of his life ought to have led him to expect from a Gentleman Gentleman of most excellent public Principles. Your Majesty's very gracious Condescension to the Lord Chancellor with perhaps except the Lord Chancellor in mentioning that he feels great Pride in recollecting that these Principles were formed, when

College, became one of its Fellows. The Lord Chancellor humbly

The High and Confidential this Impression I think it proper to submit to your Majesty a Claim which has been brought forward by the Lord Steward of your Majesty's Household to grant Tickets of Admission to the Great Hall of Windsor Castle at the Approaching Installation.

This Claim I understand rests only upon the Authority of a Document in the Lord Steward's Office where it is mentioned that the Lord Steward

Tickets were allotted to him in a particular situation. Though from the deficiency of Records in my Office I am unable to appeal to Records, yet I am fortunately in possession of a Printed Ticket of admission to the part of the Hall in question to which the name of the Earl of Bedford at that time your Majesty's Lord Chamberlain is annexed. From every information I have been able to procure, it does not appear that any Tickets have ever been issued for the Great Hall, at any former Installation but by the Lord Chamberlain.

I conceive that the Seats referred to, in the above mentioned Document were merely those allotted to the Lord Steward in common with your Majesty's

Ministers and great Officers of State who were then placed, and that the Lord Chamberlain has hitherto been solely responsible for the admission of proper Persons
