

Draft Mr Pitt.
Letter to the Lord Chancellor

New Feb 23. 1789.

It is with infinite satisfaction I renew my correspondence with Mr Pitt, by acquainting him with my having seen the Prince of Wales and my daughter; care was taken that the conversation should be general and cordial, they seemed perfectly satisfied: I chose the Meeting should be in the Queen's Apartment, that all parties might have that caution which would at the present hour but be judicious. I desire Mr Pitt will confer with the Lord Chancellor that any steps which may be necessary for raising the Annual Supplies or any other Measures that the Interests of the Nation may require should not be unnecessarily delayed; so that the ~~gratitude~~ gratitude for the Support and Anxiety shewn by the Nation at large during my tedious illness which I should ill requite if I did not use ^{to prevent any farther} ~~to put~~ ~~delay in the~~ ^{which may be necessary to bring forward} ~~public measures into its natural train~~
I must decline entering into a proposal of ~~business and~~ ^{indeed for the rest of my life} ~~for the future~~ ^{to keep this} the Duties of their Employments, ~~and~~ ^{only} ~~only~~ ^{superintending} Eye which can be affected without ~~burden~~ ^{fatigue} ~~by~~ ^{transacting} ~~the duties of~~ ^{of public men} ~~by~~ ^{transacting} an attention to the ~~miancie~~ ^{of the} ~~superior~~ ^{Machine} I am anxious to see Mr Pitt any day that may suit him tomorrow morning, and ~~to be convinced that~~ ^{with our attachment to} ~~my interest~~ ^{of}

of the Patria which are inseparable must ever place him in the most favourable light
