

Queen's Palace 16 May 1820

Though We are happy to say that ~~though~~ we think his Majesty is perfectly competent to the transaction of important business, yet we are apprehensive that frequent and protracted audiences & conversations, or the too sudden deviation from his present mode of life, might endanger a relapse; which we conceive not in the least probable, if quiet & abstaining from too much business, could be procured for a short time.

We are further of opinion that his Majesty's perfect recovery would be more speedy & certain, if his Majesty would be graciously pleased to consent, for a short time longer, to proper management.

Some idea having gone abroad that the Cheltenham waters might be of service to his Majesty, we avail ourselves of this opportunity to express our opinion that they would be neither useful, or proper.

L. Pepys
A. R. Reynolds
J. R. Milman
W. Heberden
J. J. Simmons

of the King & Physician London: Printed by W. Baskett, 1780.