

Ld. Rochford

GEO/MA101

Dec. 17 1773

1685

Lord Rochford is afraid your Majesty will think him mad in presuming to trouble your Majesty with the interest but it will serve to shew the success at Malden & tend to shew the proof of future success. Mr Gascoigne's letter is too familiar & perhaps Lord Rochford may offend in shewing it but he hopes his intentions will be considered & not the absolute act for which with the utmost humilitie he begs pardon

Berkley square
Dec 17th 1773 <sup>in</sup> 150 parts p. 100

Handwritten manuscript page with faint pencil sketches of a building or structure on the left side. The page is covered in dense, illegible handwritten text and numbers, including various mathematical notations and possibly dates. Some legible fragments include "36-0", "24", "11-2-6", "33-9", "45", "18", "37-5", "27-0", "19-26", "24-9", "11-2-6", "33-9", "45", "18", "37-5", "27-0", "19-26", "24-9". There are also some purple ink marks or stamps on the page.