Mr. Perceval presents his humble duty to your Royal Highness, and having been at Windsor to day, and being just returned, has the satisfaction to inform your Royal Highness, that he found His Majesty very much improved in his Health, as far as Mr. Perceval could judge, from the State in which he saw His Majesty on the last occasion of his paying his duty or honor - His Majesty's manner was much more his own, his conversation much less hurried, and ~~free~~ from any trace of the delusions of his Malady.

Mr Perceval hopes he has succeeded in giving his Majesty more accurate information upon his present situation under the Regency Bill - and tho' he is far from being satisfied that his Majesty will ^{ever now} have a clear & complete view of it, yet as to some particulars of your Royal Highness's powers, more especially, he thinks he has completely removed His Majesty's mistaken conceptions - Mr

¹⁷⁵⁹⁰ Perceval called at your Royal Highness's at Carlton House, but understanding that your Royal Highness had not been well, he conceived your Royal Highness would prefer receiving this communication in writing; and Mr Perceval will be happy to obey your Royal Highness's command in waiting upon you with the more detailed particulars of the conversation whenever your Royal Highness may please
