My dear Sir -

Little as I have had the good luck to see of you, I feel quite convinced that it will not be your fault, if I do not receive a ticket for the approaching fête of the Prince Regent - It was you that first made me know of his Royal Highness, and to you, I am convinced, I am chiefly indebted for the unwearied attention with which he has honoured me ever since -

I have long been afraid to call upon Mr. Macken, from feeling conscious how little I deserve to be received by her - however, being pressed by kindest remembrances to her & to be believe me very faithfully yours.

Monday night.
