Stratford
Sept 16. 1844.

Sir

Your Royal Highness will I am confident, approve by submitting the enclosed to your personal inspection. The respectability of the man, and the energetic part which he took in support of your Royal Highness's rights on the first being in question, would naturally give your Royal Highness the wish that he should be made possible of attention in the answer; however it may suit convenience to afford him any help as to the object of his wishes. I have therefore, Sir, written to assure him that the application would be immediately laid before you: had I been ventured to say that,

Altho' I could not take upon myself to speak upon the particular point which might be attended with many obstacles unknown to me, I was certain of the gracious disposition of your Royal Highness to his Lordship personally.

With infinite respect I remain, Sir,
Your Royal Highness's
Most Obedient & devoted servant
