My Dear General

But the Prince Regent's wish that papers should be sent to York House, to be forwarded from thence? or would His Royal Highness chuse, do you think, that a messenger should be sent to him, at Brighton, with anything of more than ordinary importance?

My dear Sir

All ordinary papers and communications are expected to be sent to York House, from whence those of more necessary dispatch are forwarded to Brighton, should any thing arise of high importance it will be then requisite to send a messenger to Brighton should Lord Willerby deem it of a nature to require it

From my Dear Sir

Most faithfully yours
