N. Conant to Col. McKeehan,

Portland Place

5 of 6. [1811]

Dear Sir

I could not call on you on my return as Mr Adam was inclined to go directly to the New Road for the chance of finding Mr. Traiman and for the chance of finishing the business at once.

We have not seen him but I have ~~not~~ sent him a note offering to call for him at seven to carry him to Bloomsbury Square this Ev.

The Duke was satisfied without the book being produced & Mr A has full powers for its suppression.

When I get away from Mr A. I have disposed of my companion. I will call on you & if I don't happen to find you will leave a note.

I told his R. H. H. - that seeing the Adv² I went to the Printer, being anxious, as he was the same that was before concerned, lest there might be any remnants of the former business to be introduced in the present publication - that discovering so. I thought it my duty mention it to Mr Adam - So there is not the least Idea of any other Medium.

I am Dear Sir
Yours ever most truly
N. Co. nant

I have no doubt but that the complete suppression will be ~~adjusted~~ adjusted to right.
