

The Lord Chancellor

Returning Papers enclosed for His Lordship's Advice

20517

The Lord Chancellor, most humbly submitting his Duty to your Royal Highness The Prince Regent, has the Honour to return the papers, transmitted by Col. Macmahon in obedience to your Royal Highness's Commands to the Chancellor, together with the humble Advice of your Royal Highness's confidential Servants, offered in further Obedience to those Commands. The Lord Chancellor humbly trusts that the extreme Attention, which was due to a Subject of the highest Importance, may afford some Apology for the Lord Chancellor's not having been able sooner to return those papers, with the humble Advice of your Royal Highness's confidential Servants.

April 2. 1813

[Faint, illegible text in a rectangular box at the top left]

[Faint, illegible text in a rectangular box at the top right]

The central portion of the document is a large, faint grid or ledger page. It consists of approximately 10 columns and 20 rows. The lines are very light and the text within the cells is almost entirely illegible. The grid is centered on the page and is surrounded by a wide white border.