My Dear Sir

I cannot suffer the return of the Post without acknowledging the receipt of your letter, and expressing my best thanks to you for the warm manner in which you have written.
I shall be very happy, if the measure is allowed to be carried into effect. I think the change would be of great advantage to Ireland, and the circumstance of settling of mind or ease, in respect to the professional views of your Brother, would be exceedingly gratifying to me.

Yours Dear Sir

with great regard

very sincerely

Manners
