My dear Colonel

My young Friend & Neighbour Lord Clare, has been requested by Lord Whitworth to move the address.
He hesitates a little, and was kind enough to ask my advice -

Finding his hesitation arose from an unwillingness to pledge himself, so early, to any Ministry, I advised his accepting the invitation upon the fair ground of "approving the Measures of the Prince Regent's Government."

He has consented, and sets out for London immediately.

Without a particle of the fiery enterprising genius of his Father, Lord Clare is a young man of much promise — a good Wholer, mild & conciliating in manner, with an excellent understanding; extremely popular in his County, and will certainly make a respectable Nobleman.

Feeling justly alive to every Circumstance, touching

The Person or Government of our Royal Master, I take the liberty of troubling you with this little private communication;

and with most cordial Congratulations upon those great events which enable the Regent to meet Parliament under circumstances the most glorious to the Nation, & most honorable to R: Royal Highness's Government,

I have the Honor to be

My Dear Colonel

your's sincerely
