Tuesday evening

My dear Sir

You will perceive by the enclosed letter, that I have had no time in informing Mr. Cockrell of your wishes — respecting this little Gt. shell of a place; I most — sincerely wish you could obtain it, for the air is excellent, and I really think it would be highly beneficial to your health, and spirits, to sleep out of London; the short distance too, would probably be quite compatible with your incessant occupation, and affectionate duties

Yours

To our beloved and revered Prince, I had the happiness of seeing him yesterday in the Park, and I need not tell you how it gladdened my heart, to see that he looked well, God bless him!! If His Royal Highness could be as well assured of the wonderful effects of Dr. Scott's remedy as I am, I am sure he would join his commands to my entreaties, to induce you to consult him, but you know you have promised me that you will do so, and I rely upon it as the promise of — a man of honour that you will take the very first opportunity of seeing him. — He lives at the corner of Chapell Square. —

I have the honour to be with sincere regard
My dear Sir,

Your most obliged and faithful Servant

J. Sidders.
