

desired me to inform the Prince Regent, that it had and would give him the greatest pleasure to sit to Sir J. Lawrence as often as he should desire it - that he felt gratified by the commands the Prince Regent had said upon him on this occasion, and should always set a high value on the Portrait which H. R. H. desired for him and on the details of which he would consult Sir J. Lawrence before the portrait of the Prince Regent's permission to choose the costume in which H. R. H. was to be represented

The Emperor then with a manner the most
