

Duke of Bedford.

1819

That the P. R. was a ²²³⁷⁹ Person from whom he had never received anything but kindness - That he felt very much meeting the R. who knew so coldly -

That the Catholic Question was the only thing that had occasioned it -

That Politics made no difference in his feelings towards the P. R., that he always felt that the R. must be the best judge whom he liked for his Ministers, but that he must ever regret, any course that had put an end to the Friendship with which, during so many years, he had been honored -

Duke of Devon
