Sire

We, your Majesty's Physicians, venture, humbly, to approach your Majesty, to implore your Majesty to pardon that satisfaction to your feelings, which your Majesty attaches to a performance of the last act of filial piety to the late King - your Majesty's Father. We are scarcely yet relieved from that state of anx-ity and alarm which your Majesty dangerous illness gave rise to; and from which your Majesty is only just extricated, under the mercy of Heaven.

We cannot therefore contemplate an indulgence of your Majesty's wishes without absolute dismay - seeing the probability of a relapse, in consequence of an exposure of your Majesty's person to the night air, in a Cathedral, under that anguish of mind which your Majesty was observed by every body so painfully to suffer at the performance of the same sad ceremonies last year.

And we humbly intreat your Majesty to yield, not to our wishes only, but to those of the whole nation, which would be expressed, we are persuaded, if it were generally known that your Majesty meditated this dangerous effort of respect and piety.
