Dear Sir

I have this moment received your letter, informing me that it is His Majesty's gracious intention to subscribe one thousand pounds towards the intended improvements at Trinity College Cambridge

I will lose no time in transmitting to the Master and Fellows of Trinity College this information, and I have no doubt that they will, ^{feel} deeply sensible of His Majesty's liberality and munificence towards this Royal Institution

I am with great respects
Dear Sir

Your obedient servant

Lord Melville to H. H.

Lord Melville had the honor to receive at Hyde the letter which Your Majesty condescended to address to him on the 3^d Inst^t.

He regrets extremely the circumstances which have compelled Your Majesty to abandon Your intention of going afloat this year; but notwithstanding that regret, & the high state of order in which he recently found Your Majesty's Yacht, & the disappointment which will be experienced by so many persons, Lord Melville is fully persuaded that it would not have been advisable with a view either to Your Majesty's health or comfort & convenience to undertake the excursion at present.

The other topic to which Your Majesty has been pleased to advert, viz. the observations of Captain Brenton on the conduct of in his ship of Lord St Vincent

Sir George Montagu, has occupied a good deal of the attention of the Board of Admiralty, in consequence of their having been officially addressed on the subject. There are also other passages in the work to which Lord Melville entertains strong objections; but after the deaths of almost all the persons who were prominent actors in the events to which the narrative relates, & whose testimony might possibly have been invoked as well by Captain Brenton as by those whose conduct is the subject of his animadversions, the Board of Admiralty were of opinion that they could not either usefully to the public service, or in justice to the several parties, entertain a discussion as to the accuracy of Captain Brenton's remarks or criticisms. The work professes to be merely historical. There was no reason to suspect him of having been actuated by improper motives, or to have had any other objec object in view than to state the truth, however much he may have been mistaken in the opinion either of the Board of Admiralty or of other impartial & unprejudiced judges, & he undoubtedly has had access to the confidential papers of the late Lord St. Vincent. Under those circumstances, it will remain for Your Majesty's Decision whether the measure which Your Majesty has it in contemplation to adopt towards Captain Brenton, more especially if the reason assigned relates solely to the case of Sir George Montagu may not possibly have the effect of renewing & prolonging a discussion which it would be almost imprac-ticable to bring to a satisfactory termination.

Your Majesty's goodness has been so repeatedly manifested towards me, that I feel a difficulty in addressing you upon a subject that has occurred to me upon seeing the death of Lord Cromwell in the papers of this day that there are certain circumstances connected with my name, which make me feel naturally most desirous to draw as near your Majesty's sacred person, as possible, and knowing the high distinction & honor of The office Lord Cornwallis held 2 Febry that from circumstances my Diplomatic Career has been arrested, I humbly venture to express to your Majesty how gratified I should feel by your Conivention of me interfere with your Majesty's more important Conclusions & views, Lord Liverpool has just received the Intelligence of the Death of the Marquis Cornwallis.

In consequence of the melancholy event, Lord Liverpool ventures most humbly to represent to your Majesty, that it would be a great Accommodation to your Majesty you, if it should not be disagreeable or inconvenient to your Majesty, to allow Lord Liverpool to make the Offer of the Office Master of the New House, to Lord Mansel, whereby (if accepted by him) the Office of Master of the New House would become vacant, and Lord Liverpool would be enabled to reward the indefatigable Executions of Mr Waller as Chairman of the

My dear Sir William

The riots which have taken place amongst the Students of the University of Göttingen have happily subsided. In fact the public lectures have never been interrupted. I enclose for your information the Report I have received on this unpleasant subject.
You will find that the Brevet arose from the ignorance of a Bachel of the University who saw that a Student, who accompanied to her ladyship a Milliner, had attracted a great crowd. Had desired the Student to let the lady go on her way alone. This interference was complained of by the Students en masse - and on their not obtaining redress they proceeded to break the Bachel's window

The punishment intencd by some, on this account brought about 7 or 8 hundred Students to the Resolution of leaving the University - seeing however that Government was not inclined to force the Students, perhaps with a few exceptions, have returned - There have been perished with Delegation and 5 with the Anvilum abundant - I hope that your Friend may have met with no unpleasant accident - Should I hear further Particulars I shall communicate them to you

I beg return the enclosed Papers I have the honor to be Dear Sir William G. G.
most sincerely

Dear Sir William,

My old friends, the Corporation of London, are extremely anxious to pay every Tribute of Duty & Respect to the King upon the Occasion of his making London, Castle his Residence and have applied privately to Me, in the Absence of Mr Desbrow, to endeavour to learn whether they may be permitted to present an Address to his Majesty upon

Sr William Knighthow Bart

the occasion, for which they assure me that there are precedents. - I have rather discouraged their expectation that his Majesty would subject himself to the Inconvenience of receiving them aboard in person, and if I should have judged contrary in so doing, they would offer them aboard by a Deputation through the Lord Steward or any other Officer of the Household whom his Majesty would be graciously pleased to authorize to receive it.

Might I therefore request it would be most proper & most agreeable that they should pursue, and toward what period they should be prepared with their address.

this trouble & labor in toto with great regard

Dear Sr, William

Yours very sincerely

Lord Bexley begs leave dutifully to acknowledge the honor of Your Majesty's commands respecting the Marquis of Hastings, & will take the earliest opportunity of communicating with Mr. Grant on the subject.
Lord Bexley conceives that it will be more desirable that he should see Mr. Grant if possible than write to him, & he will also speak to Mr. Parry, with whom from family connection he is much more intimate than with Mr. Grant, & who is Mr. G's particular friend.

Lord Bealey hopes Your Majesty will pardon him for adding that the high sense he entertains of Lord Hast-ings's services will make it a particular pleasure to him if he can be of any service on this occasion.
