Sir

In obedience to the orders which you communicated to me from Sir William Kneghton, I enclose herewith the particulars of His Majestys private Account, as likewise an Account of the Articles which have been completed and delivered, but of which no Bill has been sent, - also an Account of the Articles which are in a state of progress and an estimate of their cost. - all of which I hope will be found correct.

I remain with sentiments of great respect.

Memorandum to be read to Mr. Bridge and to be deposited in the Drawing Office of Leicester Office -

His Majesty has commanded Sir William Knighton to pay to Mr. Bridge the Sum of Eleven thousand seven hundred & Sixty six Pounds 9/9 - according to the Account Delivered in; but His Majesty was quite astonished that He should have contracted a Debt to the great Amount specified in various other Items - Sir William Knighton therefore directs, under His Majesty's Approval, that the Articles finished, but not delivered, are not to be delivered until they are paid for; nor to be considered as The King's Property - The same Rule applies to those Articles now in in progress; and, as to the other Articles said to be furnished, and which constitute another Bill, Sir William Knighton can say nothing respecting the Payment of such Bill at present, as he has no funds.

~~He has, as he has no funds.~~ Sir William ~~Knighton desires to add, in conclusion, that he considers Mr. Bridges' Conduct most unfair to His Majesty, as well as to himself, that such Sums should have been contracted, not only without making Sir W. K. acquainted <sup>therewith</sup> with it, but even <sup>leaving</sup> His Majesty being in utter ignorance of the great extent of it.~~ cannot too strongly express His regret that His Majesty should have become again so large a

I believe to the House of Commons I should I suppose Mr. Justice Knighton has done all he can to prevent it. I certainly will not make himself responsible for the consequences.
