Lord North, As the letter I have received from you plainly shews that at all events you expect to be released from your situation at the close of this session, and that you cannot expiate yourself for that small period if the Law Arrangements you yourself had proposed to me ~~take~~ effect; I think it on the whole best to make no arrangement during this recess, and therefore you are dispensed from taking any steps concerning the present Attorney and Solicitor Generals, or any successors to them; which I hope will enable you to pass the next Week quietly at Bushy, that you may recruit your mind to carry on the business in the House of Commons for the remains of this session
