Lord Amherst presents his compliments to The Duke of Chandos, and has the Honour to acknowledge the receipt of His Grace's Letter of this date. The Promotions are already given in, to the War Office, agreeably to The King's Commands respecting them; and His Majesty will select from amongst the Colonels such of them as he may choose to be his Aides de Camps. Lord Amherst would have been ready to lay before The King.

King any request of the Duke of Chandos upon this or any other occasion, but as His Grace proposes to see the King himself on the Subject of Colonel Adair, that may be more satisfactory both to His Grace and to the Colonel.
