

Charles Feutkenson

Nov. 25 1779

3610

The moment I left your Majesty yesterday, I went to Lord Rosbe & saw him; I found him very much flushed & very jealous. I began to talk to him on the subject of Lord Hillsborough; He wonder'd where I could have heard any thing of that Messager; I had an answer ready & I have one, which was that he had told me the whole of it himself; I saw however by this little specimen that it would not be safe for me to proceed further or to touch upon any of the Topics which your Majesty had suggested. He had just received a very angry Message from Lord Hillsborough who who was then waiting at Mr Robinson's House, he returned for answer to His Lordship (as Mr Robinson afterwards told me) that the Lord Hillsborough, should go to Lord Stormont's Meeting, was to conseder himself as Secretary of State & that <sup>it is</sup> he would write to your Majesty, that you would permit Lord Hillsborough to kiss hands today. — He appeared indeed perfectly ashamed of the Morning's Transaction — He was very thoughtful during his Dinner, but recovered himself a little towards the last. — The Meeting at the Cockpit was better than he expected, & more numerous, I am told, than last year. & Mr Robinson tells me that he shall be tonight between 220 & 230 & the Opposition between 170 & 180.

Rob
 gra
 thin
 to d
 any you arriv have is do
 to K
 su in the May
 eight good 2 in the
 on the

Charles Feutkensou.

Nov. 25 1779

3610 (2)

I have received the Note with which your Majesty has been graciously pleased to honour me, I think that the Answer you have written to Lord North is as wise & discreet, as any thing can be. I would submit for your Majesty, whether you would not write to the Charubons, as soon as you have heard again from Lord North, & it is determined that Lord Hillsborough is to kiss hands, informing him of it. I see the Charubons's conduct exactly in the same point of view, that your Majesty does, but I think it will be right to endeavour to keep him in good Humour

The Attorney was at the dinner yesterday & rather out of Humour, Lord Beauchamp was there & in

in good humour, Lord North told Mr Robinson, that he wanted to do something for His Majesty in order to keep the Westford Society well inclined. — Mr Rigby was not at the Dinner.

From your Majesty's

Dutiful Subject

L. Robinson

Recd. at
Nov. 25. 1779
1/2 past 9

Mr. Robinson
Part. of West. Nov. 25. 1779
15. past 9. P.M.