29. Sept. 1791.

My dearest Son. I will not begin by thanking You for Your Letter, but by Congratulating You upon an Event in which You have contributed every thing in Your power to make it easy, & to make all Parties happy. I hope this Day will confirm Your Brothers happiness & that You may long very long live to be a Witness to it is my most ardent Wish. Our happiness of the Day is not Complete owing to Your Absence, particularly as You are prevented by indisposition, & yet I feel some satisfaction in knowing that You take care of Yourself, as in this Age it is rare thing to meet with Prudent Deaux. I think I have given You a Strong proof of my disinterestedness, & I deserve some credit for it, as I had the addition of Your Company on this Day would have been a great Agreement to Us. The King desires to be kindly & affectionately remembered to You, & so do

Your Sisters, & I must Add that Princess Royal is true Sensible of Your attention towards Her. & so am I, what can You want more; than to Possess the Approbation of the Ladies, I hope You will Credit it, if not, at least Believe me when I Subscribe myself

Your very affectionate Mother & Sincere Friend.
