My dearest Son I have surely not any thing to say of very great importance for myself, but as every thing comes to be so that concerns those we love, I look upon Y^r Commission to send some Pigeons for the Princess sufficiently ^{great} as to write you a letter to announce their departure this Morning also directed to Mrs Willis in Town who is to forward them immediately to Brighton. They are to be respected upon the road with M^y so that they will be fit for getting immediately & I hope they will prove to the Princess's taste. My little Black Lady was not woucheuse to couchie sooner than 10 weeks to come & L^{ieut} George Howard hath been so good as to give these up to me & are the same breed as mine.

The Councils at New have not been forgot, but at present none are to be had, & this little luxury as well as many others are forbidden Fruit for some time to come.

 He bien il faut s'y faire, c'est une petite chose en comparaison de bien des autres. I hope now soon to see

You, & when we have had a little more conversation to see Dr Underwood on Wednesday next at 11

I have not as yet heard of any recommendation for a Nurse & therefore beg that in case You have to bring the letters, that enquirence may be made after them;

Our Life is very quiet at present, ^{Company} ~~None~~ but our two Ladies with us in the House, & the Weather so bad that the Yig only can go out, so Day there is a gleam of Sunshine & that moment I have chose to write to You, in hopes of making my Ideas also appear brighter but I am afraid of not having quite succeeded so well.

You have heard I suppose of poor Goldsworthy's Atty quite similar to what you was witness to. He was a full born quite senseless. Notwithstanding Cupping & Bleeding. He is now almost quite well, with any bad symptoms remaining, but not strong enough to think of going as Esquerry in Waiting to Weymouth, He will come as a Visitor, & that will be very agreeable.

 We have dined at ^{of} ~~of~~ Deaulieu last ~~Wednesday~~ Tuesday & after we left him He took a ride, beat himself very much, would not drink any thing Warm, chose to Eat quantities of Fruit, the consequence of which was a fainting Fit which made the World think ~~that~~ had a Stroke, but He has been in Town since, also upon the Terrace & I hope will make His Row on ~~Monday~~ Tuesday next. but to say the Truth He goes very Fast.
 I think it is now Time to release you I shall only beg my Compliment to the Princess
