My dearest Son. I am to return You Thanks for the Letter You sent me from Augustus & the Book from Vienna, which arrived safely Yesterday Morning. I am sorry that poor Augustus has been so unwell ever since His Physician left Him as I fear that He will not meet with another that can know His Constitution equal to Dorniger. He had some very good reasons for parting with Him, but I fear He will feel His Loss Severely.

I have the pleasure to inform You that Charlotte goes on better & better every day even Hester assures me that Her little Neck & back bone grow considerably better, Lady Elgin has been seriously ill indeed, She begins to read, but it will be slow. There is no danger at present, Her attack was Bilious & many ill by Herself, but timely assistance has done so well that She can now see the Child who by the by was wretched to a degree.

I am glad to hear You have met with some success at the races. & that at last the Weather proves to be fine. I trust it will continue so when You come. The Time of our Departure is still unknown to us, & Ernest is not come, nor do I hear of His coming tho. He has told many People in London of His intention to come.

We are to have if the Weather permit a Sailing Match to Morrow in Honour of the Day that is all that can be done for there is not a Soul here to make up.
