Pourquoi faut-il Sentir ce qui on ne peut pas exprimer? says Madame de Sevigny: & I feel that she spoke truth, for I do at this moment, & on this Day, feel what my Pen never can ~~express~~ sufficiently, yet notwithstanding this difficulty my wishes upon the return of this Day are not less Sincere, nor less fervent, for Your Happiness & Prosperity; may You see many of them with uninterm^{ing} Pleas^{ure}, & may You never be less happy than an affectionate Mother ~~can~~ wishes, You will then enjoy true felicity, both here & hereafter, & believe me Sincere when I say that in Your Happiness must "always is concerned" the Happiness of Her who feels pleasure in subscribing Herself
