St. G. will be of the Party at Earl's to morrow.

My dearest Son. The Papers with Y^r two affectionate Letters came safe to my Hands, & I have studied them with all possible attention. As yet the dear King has not ~~to~~ mentioned them to me, for the Days that He goes to London, He seldom stays after Breakfast being over, but You may rest assured Whenever the different Subjects are touched upon I shall not fail to exert all ⁱⁿ my Powers to alleviate Your Distress & to prevent if Possible a new Breach in the Family of which there has been full enough already.

I shall not make any comment upon the Papers, ~~from~~ but will only add that it is my earnest wish that by my feeble endeavours I may be enabled to secure some Ease & Comfort to Your agitated Mind, in which if I do not succeed according to expectation, You will accuse the Head but not the Heart of

My dearest Son
