My dearest Son I received G<sup>o</sup> Bloomfield's Letter at eight a Clock this Morning & at Eleven little Carr Damer came to the Queens House, when dear Augusta was (as more used to taly openly with Her ~~was~~ Deputed to Inform Her of W<sup>h</sup> wishes about Her House. She seemed "Flattered ~~at~~ the Manner in which it was proposed to Her, but Declined it immediately as She was Partial to the House having been the Habitation of Her Parents & having lived there ever since Her Birth & Her Expression was I am there as long as a Button I am sorry not to have Succeeded, but fear that upon Enquiry You will find Camelford House too small as Mr Dowry (or) Harcourt told me some years ago & not long since, that it was almost too small for any Private Family.

I am extremely sorry to learn by Mr W. letter that you have a Fresh attack, but still hope it will not prove of long Duration<sup>so</sup> to prevent yr coming to Town.

I rejoice that you upon longer acquaintance<sup>continue</sup> to approve of the Prince of Cobourg His Sejour with You se cures Him from being beset on all Sides by those who might be Inclined to do Mischief the Consequences of which might prove very disagreeable both to you & to

 I return
 I be called dine with perhaps come every one of see you I sh

to you & to them.

I return to Day to Windsor, & should I be called to London I promised to dine with the Duke of York, whose butcher comes to Town to Day, where every one of us will be happy to see you inhabit Carlton House again My dearest Son.
