to H.R.H.

Sir

Though I am perfectly sensible, that I can have no Pretensions to intrude upon your Royal Highness on the subject on which I am now venturing to address you, I am however led to flatter myself that your Royal Highness will graciously attribute my doing so to the motives, that of a desire to be of service to a respectable and worthy Clergyman, and I shall without further trespassing on your Royal Highness's time, humbly solicit you in the event of the dying of Great Beckford in Hertfordshire becoming vacant, which I am informed is in your Royal Highness's gift, and is very likely to be vacant in a short space of Time, to better it on the Rev^d Sr Dupree who at present is at the Head of a considerable School in that Town & whose Character as a Schoolmaster & Clergyman I have heard much commended.

Should your Royal Highness desire to comply with this Request you will thereby confer a very great favour on me & in addition to all those for which I have already so much Reason to be grateful

I have the Honour to be,

Sir

your Royal Highness's

most obedient

& dutiful Servant

Spencer.
