Three o'Clock

Sir

The Duke of York will meet Your Royal Highness at Oatlands, & will give you the detail of his conversation with the King. He only desires me in the mean time to say that His Majesty was exceedingly pleased with your Paper, &
-woud that it was quite sufficient for him to form his resolution upon; & added that if the Duke would call upon him tomorrow he should be charged with a letter to the Princess.

With the greatest duty, I remain ever Your Royal Highness's most faithful & obliged servant

George

A. K. H.

The Prince of Wales.

I have omitted to say that I have shown the News-Paper to the Duke of Portland, commenting on the nature of the Paragraphs which so indecently use the King's name. The Duke told me that he had repeated to His Majesty what I said respecting the Paper yesterday: But he did not explain whether he meant to take any steps for investigating the source of such misrepresentations.
