Strington, Jan 5th

My Dear Colonel

The destruction of your Regiment to Ireland is disagree-able, as it gives us less prospect of enjoying your company. With regard to reduction, the measure bears nothing ominous in its appearance. I happen to know that Lord Camden made a resolu-tion on having no Infantry of the Line left in that Country: and I suppose the combination which has come to light in upon the trial of Bolton / I mean the secret League of the Defenders / may have given a open to his apprehensions. I congratulate you on the General's safe arrival, but I want to learn how his health is. He was not at all well before he quitted St. Myer. You cannot conceive in what handsome & respectful terms he is spoken of by the French who were under his command. The situation has of all events been in honor to him: a barren one indeed, for that There is a lot attached to all connected with the your fortunes, however, will hold out as long as those of any others in this country according to all probability, since the difficulties of public finance are accumulating so fast that I really think what is called a blow-up cannot fail to happen to Government. The conviction would it take this country to be but secondary, because people have fixed principles to return to.

But it would for a time annul the views of all the higher ranks, & our rights see Bishop Hensley & the Justice Reeves sweeping the kennels.

Believe me, Sir, I am,
Yours faithfully,
J. Hensley
